

ON RESTAURANTS

Several barbecue joints set to sizzle

Tuesday, September 25, 2007 5:54 AM

BY BILL CHRONISTER

It's fall, and barbecue restaurants seem to be springing up all over.

...

Local bottler

Old Worthington soon will be home to House Wine, at 644 High St., a startup venture by four Worthington partners led by Donnie Austin. The wine shop is borrowing from a number of chain concepts, but the owners are banking on its local feel and adaptability to customers' wishes to set it apart.

The shop will be organized by price and variety, with a value section and a temperature-controlled room for higher-priced bottles. A variety of beers also will be sold.

Austin is featuring an Enomatic dispensing machine, which will allow shoppers to sample 24 wines. Any of the wines and beers can be enjoyed in the shop for a small corkage fee.

On Restaurants is a weekly column about the restaurant industry. Send tips, information and news releases to: onrestaurants@dispatch.com

bchronister@dispatch.com